

Awards/ Screenings

At www.david-osullivan.co.uk we are constantly pushing boundries and have won many awards for our excellence and innovation.

Our Pilot episode for Monica Giltheart and The Mysterious Pencil won the regional and National Royal Television Awards for non-factual short film as well as being selected to screen at the UK's top film festivals such as 'Raindance' and 'Brief Encounters'.

The series concept received great praise from ITV and the BBC and as a result we worked with 2-sides TV and Film and General for most of 2005 developing the project into a fully fledged TV series.

The Pilot episode has also been screened on the Performance Channel in this country and other channels around the world both broadcast and web-based.

In addition to these awards we have also received the Kodak Award for creativity for our advertising concept, 'Moving Moments' where we pioneered a virtual camera technique which has since become very popular.

We have also staged a number of plays at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival and these have consistently been awarded 4 and 5 star reviews in 'The Scotsman'.
